

MORNING APPEAL

SUNDAY MARCH 17

W. T. Mines.

During the past few months numbers of restless Carson people have been excited over the report of good mining openings in Washington Territory.

The APPEAL recently requested Mr. Chas. Laughton formerly of this city to give such information as he had at hand, regarding the principle group of mines in the Territory, that Carson people contemplating a trip there could get some idea of the place before starting. Mr. Laughton's letter will prove quite interesting to people who are desirous of investing in that direction; but the general trend of the letter is that it will be a good deal more profitable to wait until the railroads get into the country.

The Kind He Was.

Ruf. Shoemaker, in his new paper, the Evening Telegraph, says: "We get very few exchanges. We do not want many, for we do not have time to read much. A few first-class country papers, edited by gentlemen in whose good judgment and honesty we have confidence, and one or two large dailies edited by the same kind of men spoken of as above, will do for the table of The Evening Telegraph. And our exchange list is nearly complete and is composed as indicated above."

As the Telegram wrote to this office for an exchange the day before its first number appeared, it is easy to see that Ruf. Shoemaker knows where to go for what he wants.

A Lame Defense.

The defense in the Potts murder trial in Elko does not strike one as very plausible. The couple charged with the murder swear Mrs. Potts discovered the deceased outraging her four-year-old daughter, and feared to expose him as she thought he would kill her.

He continued to live in the house with them several months after the alleged outrage. Then they claim that he became stricken with remorse at his dastardly act and committed suicide. It will be remembered, however, that until his body was discovered, the couple charged with his death insisted that he had gone East.

—When the Regents of the University were elected, the aim of the Convention was to divide the Regents about the State geographically. Regent Wells, of this county, having resigned, it is the proper thing for the Governor to appoint an Ormsby county man to succeed him.

—Word was received here yesterday that the Deputy U. S. Marshall of Indian Territory had been murdered by desperadoes. This makes the sixteenth killed in the same Territory within a year.

—Yesterday was another "great joy" day to the ranchers. There was a nice snow storm in the morning, and the mountains got another six inches. The weather sharps say there is still more coming.

—Although the Democratic press fear that Harrison will be almost killed by the office-seekers, he seems to be enjoying the best of health, and as fit as a fiddle for his Administrative duties.

—The State Board of Examiners cut down the election expense account to a little over $12,000. It will therefore be seen that Sharon's original bill appropriating $15,000 was enough.

—The surveyors having satisfied themselves concerning the different dips, spurs and angles of the Pamlico and Lakeview, Hawthorn District, the miners returned to work on Friday.

—The Governor has signed Garrard's cattle trespass bill, one of the best Legislative enactments ever passed in this State.

—The Gazette still fights the water storage scheme. Come, Bagg, "break away there, and get to your corner."
